Excellencies,

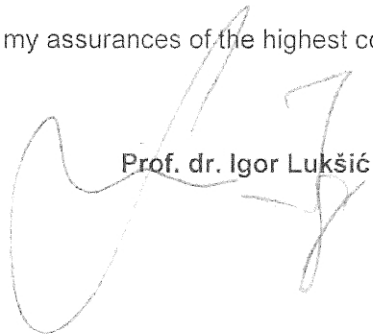

I would like to take this opportunity to inform you that I have decided to withdraw my nomination for the position of the Secretary General of the UN.

It has been enormous pleasure to take part in the process in which I was given the chance to offer in a transparent way the concrete measures and innovations to improve operative capacity of the Organization the way I see it. I am also very glad my platform was well noted and considered with due attention.

Given the complexity of the international context, the next Secretary General will face demanding task to make sure the UN system is fit for the purpose. The multilateral agenda has been substantially improved with the existence of the number of prominent international agreements and resolutions. Therefore I believe it matters in the coming years to concentrate on the implementation of that agenda and making sure the world's youth perceives the UN's work as a lighthouse of the better future. To that end I am sure that further investments in restoring trust and development in particular will contribute to both peace and security and human rights.

In addition for the sake of equal ownership of all the regions within the UN I hope the Eastern European argument will prevail when it comes to the final decision, but whoever eventually is appointed as the next Secretary General of the UN I wish all the success in the future engagements.

Please, Excellencies, accept my assurances of the highest consideration

Prof. dr. Igor Lukšić
